Informal Family Decision-Making Checklist

Evidence based research and the DEC Recommended Practices inform us that a strong family-professional partnership is essential for early intervention to be successful. Families, early interventionists and service coordinators all bring something important and unique to this partnership, and sometimes expectations of what early intervention is (or isn’t) can vary among families and other team members.

If finding ways to participate in decision-making efforts is something you would like to understand better then take a few minutes to review the Informed Family Decision-Making Checklist (pdf) that was developed by the ECTA Center. Then you can decide how it may help you with the important work you do as a partner in early intervention. Perhaps it is something you will choose to complete, with other team members, with an entire IFSP team, or simply as a self-assessment to reflect on your own skills and abilities. Elko NV—Partners in Policymaking Class # 2

“As I settle in to what is sure to be another amazing two day class, I think back to the previous class and secretly hope that this one will be a little less emotional than the last. As I hoped, it was less emotional but just as informational and inspiring as the last.

Day one started off with reintroductions and a few logistics, then it was off to the races with what looked to be a full day of amazing speakers. The first speakers of the day were two lovely well-informed ladies from the Nevada Governor’s Council on Developmental Disabilities speaking on the history of developmental disabilities. They shared information to us about the history of Partners in Policymaking, how it is funded, and why it is so important. Also information about how their member board is put together and how they are engaged in advocacy systems around our state. Please check out their website at www.nevadaddcouncil.org for more information.

Next up was Mary Bryant from the University of Nevada Reno’s (UNR) Nevada Center for Excellence in Disabilities (NCED). Mary was there to speak to us about rethinking guardianship, and post secondary education for students with intellectual disabilities. I was excited to hear Mary present to us, as I had heard her give a presentation on rethinking guardianship last year to the Down Syndrome Network of Northern Nevada. At the time it was a videoconference to Elko from Reno. I could not wait to hear it again and have it really sink in.

Mary’s talk on rethinking guardianship is one that really gets you thinking about the future. My little Averi is only five years old but thinking about the best approach for her becoming an adult is so important. Mary stresses that guardianship should not be the choice we make as it has many, many unwanted consequences. Knowing what other options are out there can help everyone involved make the best choice for the future. This not only applies to our young adults with disabilities but our elderly as well.

Mary’s other passion includes post secondary education for students with intellectual disabilities. Yes ladies and gentlemen, college is possible for everyone. Mary recommended that all families start thinking about and saving money for college. There are a good number of college opportunities all over the nation for adults with disabilities. Even our very own UNR has a program called Path to Independence (P2I), and the University of Nevada Las Vegas (UNLV) also has a program called F.O.C.U.S. (Forming Occupational and Community Understanding for Success). Mary is the project director for P2I and strongly urges all young adults and families to think about the future and reach for the stars. It is possible and there are options. www.thinkcollege.net can get you started and help find the best college to help young adults with disabilities live their dreams.

Day one was wrapped up by having speakers from our community agencies who had booths at the Partnering for Awareness and Community Education (PACE) event come speak to our Partners in Policymaking class. They were there to tell us about the programs they represented. All age groups from infants to elderly were represented. Speakers from respite care, job find, employment and consumer health assistance were there from our community. Our little rural community really does have a lot to offer it just takes a little more effort to find it. It would’ve been nice to see more of our community resources at the PACE event, but kudos to the ones that did have a booth and came to talk with our class. Getting the word out about what is offered in our community is so important.

“I am only one, but I am still one. I cannot do everything, but still I can do something. And because I cannot do everything I will not refuse to do the something that I can do.” — Helen Keller
Day two was dedicated to supportive living/home of your own, and supportive and competitive employment. Our presenter for the day was Alexander Cherup. Alex is a return presenter from our first Partners in Policymaking class. We were only too happy to welcome him back, he is well spoken and very educated on the topics he presents, and is the director of transition services for Nevada PEP. He was also joined by his friend and fellow presenter Micah Fieldman. Micah is a vibrant thirty something who lives and works in Syracuse, New York. He is also a self advocate who advocates for others through his personal experience and love for independence.

Micah joined us via Skype from his home in Syracuse. He told us about the many different supports he has in his life that help him live and work independently far from his hometown. Micah's can do attitude is contagious and his perseverance helps break down the barriers many of us have in our mind for people with disabilities. Much of Micah's story can be found on YouTube and on Micah’s website - www.throughthesamedoor.com

Alex talked to us in depth about supported living and how it has changed over the years. From putting adults with disabilities into asylums, to living on their own with the right supports in place to help them succeed. The workplace is also a place that has changed very much over the years. People with disabilities are standing up and asking for jobs and to be paid fairly. "Sheltered workshops", and subpar wages are soon to be a thing of the past and we will see our fellow human beings working together to get a job done regardless of their disabilities.

I know I have only just brushed the surface of the information that was presented to us over these two days. I would like to encourage you all to think about the future. Please, if there is a class offered in your area on any subject of your interest to help you become a better advocate, don’t hesitate to take it. It can only make you a better person and help you be a better advocate. A big thank you to the presenters and to Diana and Travis, from the NCED, who work so hard to organize this for us. THANK YOU!” ~ Janina Easley, ICC Parent Representative

“When you do nothing, you feel overwhelmed and powerless. But when you get involved, you feel the sense of hope and accomplishment that comes from knowing you are working to make things better.” ~ Pauline R. Kezer, parent

FREE.... Participation in the national Early Intervention Family Alliance (EIFA) is open to all interested in supporting early intervention. . . Keep informed! Obtain Answers! Impact Policies!

The Early Intervention Family Alliance is a national leadership organization dedicated to improving outcomes for infants and toddlers with disabilities and their families.

Members receive email alerts and updates on key early intervention topics and can join the EIFA list serve to participate in active discussions and share experiences. Web: www.eifamilyalliance.org
The purpose of Nevada’s State Systemic Improvement Plan (SSIP) is to improve the statewide system of early intervention services to improve social/emotional outcomes of children participating in services. Research shows healthy social/emotional development of the child is directly linked to healthy supportive interactions and relationships with family members, caregivers and peers. Likewise, the ongoing development of a healthy and effective system of early intervention services requires interaction with, and input from, those most impacted by the system – families of infants and toddlers with disabilities.

Over the next few newsletters, information will be included to introduce and discuss Nevada’s SSIP. This will provide key information about this plan and how it will help to improve early intervention services for infants and toddlers with disabilities and their families.

It’s About Results

The goal of the Nevada’s system of early intervention services for infants and toddlers with disabilities established under Part C of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) is to improve results and functional outcomes for all infants and toddlers with disabilities. While the provision of early intervention services must comply with all IDEA requirements, states are also required to demonstrate improved results for infants and toddlers with disabilities participating in early intervention services.

The IDEA requires all states to establish a State Performance Plan (SPP) that evaluates efforts to implement the requirements and purposes of Part C, describes how the State will improve implementation, and includes measurable and rigorous targets for indicators established by the U.S. Secretary of Education. As part of meeting this requirement for Nevada, the IDEA Part C Office worked with stakeholders, including parent representatives, to develop Nevada’s State Systems Improvement Plan (SSIP).

The SSIP is a comprehensive, ambitious, yet achievable multi-year plan for improving results for Nevada’s infants and toddlers with disabilities. It is also a critical part of the US Office of Special Education (OSEP) Results Driven Accountability (RDA) system. Development and implementation of the plan includes three (3) phases. Nevada has completed Phases I and II of the SSIP and submitted them to OSEP for approval. Complete copies of Phase I and Phase II of Nevada’s SSIP are available on the IDEA Part C Website at http://dhhs.nv.gov/Programs/IDEA/Publications/.

To better serve families and individuals with I/DD in future planning, “Build Your Plan” is a tool that enables families to create an account and begin to build their plans. To help prepare your child for adulthood, it is never too early to start planning for your child’s future. Parents will get comprehensive advice and strategies on how to address:

- financial factors—including mortgages and other expenses, insurance policies, investments, and savings
- legal factors—such as conducting estate planning, weighing guardianship with less restrictive alternatives, and creating a Special Needs Trust to ensure a child’s future
- government factors—identifying and supplementing government benefits, such as residential services, supported employment, and respite care
- family and support factors—such as the family’s values, the parent’s careers, sibling considerations, and contributions of extended family members
- emotional factors—such as dealing with both positive and negative feelings, staying connected with others, and using strong emotions to fuel advocacy

“Laying Community Foundations for Your Child with a Disability: How to Establish Relationships That Will Support Your Child…” This practical guide shows families how to establish a network of people who can provide lasting relationships for their children, and the importance of beginning the process as early as possible in the life of their child. If you're the parent of a child with a disability, this book is of critical importance to you. Laying Community Foundations emphasizes the need to begin now to build a caring community of people who will provide emotional support and guidance for your child throughout their life. Chapters discuss: • how to assess your child's needs & interests • how to navigate the human side of estate planning • how to foster long-term relationships for your child • where to look for potential relationships • how to ask people for a commitment • independent living arrangements.

“The Common Sense Guide to Your Child’s Special Needs: When to Worry, When to Wait, What to Do” – If you have a child who is struggling, who is not meeting her/his developmental milestones, Dr. Pellegrino clearly explains to parents what are the next steps to take. – Section 1 entitled “Understanding Your Child,” goes into details about common areas of concern – Section 2 entitled “Special Children, Special Needs,” focuses on hearing, vision, and sensory problems. Also, Dr. Pellegrino has a chapter on Special Medical Problems where he gives information on basic health care of children with special needs.

“The Early Intervention Guidebook for Families and Professionals: Partnering for Success” – This practical guide is essential reading for both professionals and families of infants and toddlers with, or at risk for, developmental delays or disabilities. The Early Intervention Guidebook shows what early intervention looks like when it is based on current research, policies, and best practices. It focuses on how families and professionals can collaborate effectively so that young children learn, grow, and thrive. Specific components of early intervention evaluation and assessment, program planning, intervention implementation, service coordination, and transition are discussed in every chapter. With hundreds of books and DVDs available for use statewide, contact your service provider or coordinator. If you have questions or recommendations for the Library, contact Project ASSIST toll free at 1-800-522-0066 or send an email to ProjectAssist@dhhs.nv.gov.

Wrightslaw - Special Needs: Planning for the Future—
We receive many questions about future planning for kids with disabilities from parents, relatives, and health care providers. If you are the parent of a child with special needs, you need to educate yourself about the many options available. It is never too early to start planning for your child's future. – See more at: http://www.wrightslaw.com/info/future.plan.index.htm

The Arc's Center for Future Planning—
Planning ahead can help guide a person with an intellectual or developmental disability (I/DD) to lead a good life as independently as possible. A plan is important throughout all stages of life and especially in the future after the parent or caregiver is no longer able to provide support.

To better serve families and individuals with I/DD in future planning, “Build Your Plan” is a tool that enables families to create an account and begin to build their plans. https://futureplanning.thearc.org/
