Message from Part C's State Family Resource Coordinator, Information & Referral... HAPPY FOURTH of JULY!!!

Dear Parents/Families
An opportunity to attend... MEETING NOTICE

STATE EARLY INTERVENTION INTERAGENCY COORDINATING COUNCIL (ICC)

Date and Time of Meeting: Thursday, July 16, at 9:00 a.m.
Meeting will be held via Video Conference at the Following Locations:

- Las Vegas: Nevada Early Intervention Services [call for new location!]
  1161 South Valley View Blvd., Conference Room
- Reno: Nevada Early Intervention Services
  2667 Enterprise, Conference Room
- Elko: Nevada Early Intervention Services
  1020 Ruby Vista Drive, Conference Room

Nevada's ICC was set up to advise and assist Nevada in the development and implementation of a statewide system of early intervention services for young children with developmental delays or disabilities and their families. Families and community partners are invited to all ICC meetings.

It is especially important to hear from families and I encourage you to participate. If you would like more information about attending meetings or how to submit public comments to the Council, please contact me at: ddinnell@dhhs.nv.gov or ProjectAssist@dhhs.nv.gov or call Project ASSIST at 1-800-522-0066

Sincerely,
Dan Dinnell

The Part C Family Newsletter has opportunities to suggest and share... You are invited to submit articles, share your story, or include your child in a Family Spotlight, with a photo. (All items are subject to editing and review.)
“There’s that moment when you are carrying a baby that the feeling of their little feet kicking inside you is pure bliss. Not everyone is able to experience that. While I was lucky enough to get pregnant, my body struggled to keep that life going inside. I spent incalculable hours fearing the worst and vowing to save the life of my unborn baby at any cost. But no one ever really talks about that cost. Two of my three children were born with completely different medical and genetic conditions. My oldest was born with one side of his face paralyzed, some craniofacial deformities, autism, and a decreased ability to regulate his nervous system (breathing, body temperature, sleep, etc.). My youngest was born with microcephaly, most likely caused by mitochondrial disease. They will tell you that these children are “special,” and will teach you more about life than any classroom could ever offer. And while this is true, it doesn’t make caring and fighting for them any easier.

I was given a gift last year when my children’s developmental specialist and social worker, respectively, handed me a slip of paper, one for the Nevada PARTNERS IN POLICYMAKING class, and the other to be a parent representative on Nevada’s Early Intervention INTERAGENCY COORDINATING COUNCIL (ICC). That was the beginning of my parent advocacy journey. Through speakers and friendships made at PARTNERS IN POLICYMAKING, and active discussions on the ICC, it was evident to me that there is a disconnect between people and the programs that deliver services. Parents I speak with are often not even aware of the resources they have, how to access them, or even that there are multiple Early Intervention providers to choose from. Moreover, most of the parents I meet, including myself, don’t understand or know how to ask for certain services or really grasp what our parent rights actually mean.

For these reasons, my husband and I set in motion a project that will forever change our role in our children’s lives. We created the Nevada Parent Advocacy Initiative. With the help of early intervention providers, the Nevada Governor’s Council on Developmental Disabilities, and most importantly, other parents, we are working to create a strong community of parent advocates. This project consists of a parent Facebook support page for families with children in Early Intervention Services, comprehensive brochures that give parents all the basic information they need to access and utilize services effectively, and a website that consolidates the wealth of knowledge of everyone who is part of this system. It’s all the insider information about Early Intervention in one common place.

We ask that, as parents and caregivers, we stand together as a strong community and help each other to face our fears, find the courage to embrace our differences, to get involved, and to share the joy that our children bring us. Our lives, and our children’s lives, may not always be filled with bliss, but together, I truly believe, that we can achieve something really remarkable.” – Aimee Hadleigh, ICC Parent Representative

Great Conference Keynotes You Don’t Want to Miss!

Monday morning

Josh Hanagarne couldn’t be invisible if he tried. Although he wouldn't officially be diagnosed with extreme Tourette Syndrome until his freshman year of high school, Josh was six years old when he first began exhibiting symptoms. When he was twenty and had reached his towering height of 6’7”, his tics escalated to nightmarish levels. Determined to conquer his affliction, Josh tried countless remedies, with dismal results. At last, an eccentric, autistic strongman taught Josh how to “throttle” his tics into submission using increasingly elaborate feats of strength. What started as a hobby, in his spare time he trains for strongman competitions, became an entire way of life—and an effective way of managing his disorder. He overcame his own case of Tourette Syndrome and is now working to help others.

Today, Josh Hanagarne is the proud father of five-year-old Max, husband, avid reader, librarian at Salt Lake City’s public library, weight lifter extraordinaire, founder of a popular blog about books and weight lifting—and the author of the amazing book, “The World’s Strongest Librarian: A Memoir of Tourette’s, Faith, Strength, and the Power of Family.” He believes in curiosity, questions, strength, and that things are never so bad they can’t improve. He has given numerous presentations around the country and was a key presenter at the 2011 Office of Special Education Projects’ Mega Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C.

Robert Naseef, Ph.D., is the father of an adult son with autism, and has "a foot in each world" as a father and a professional. He received his doctoral degree in psychological studies from Temple University and has practiced for over 20 years as a psychologist. He has a full-time independent practice in Philadelphia, in psychology that specializes in working with families of children with autism and other disabilities or special needs.

Dr. Naseef has a broad background in both education and psychology, and was instrumental in developing a training package to foster parent-professional collaboration for the New Jersey Department of Education, Division of Special Education, and taught graduate courses at Antioch University in Philadelphia and Rider University in Lawrenceville, New Jersey. He served as field supervisor for doctoral students from Rutgers University Center for Applied Psychology. He was a faculty member at American Healthcare Institute where he taught courses in childhood mood, anxiety, and developmental disorders. He holds clinical privileges in psychology at Penn Behavioral Health, University of Pennsylvania Hospital, serves on the board of directors of the Center for Autism, and the professional advisory board of the Philadelphia Autism Center for Excellence.

In 2008, Robert Naseef was honored by "Variety, the Children's Charity" for his outstanding contributions over the past 20 years to the autism community.

He has published in scholarly journals and other publications including several books, “Special Children, Challenged Parents: The Struggles and Rewards of Raising a Child With a Disability”, and "Autism in the Family: Caring and Coping Together". He is the co-editor with Dr. Cindy N. Ariel of Voices from the Spectrum: Parents, Grandparents, Siblings, People with Autism, and Professionals Share Their Wisdom”. "Living Along the Autism Spectrum” is a DVD which features him with Stephen Shore and Dan Gottlieb.

Dr. Naseef has lectured nationally and internationally on issues related to family life with special needs and was invited as a key presenter at the 2014 World Autism Congress in Kuwait City. He has appeared on radio and television. He has a special interest and expertise in the psychology of men and fatherhood, and facilitates a "Google Hangout” called, “Guy Talk”, hosted by AutismBrainstorm.org, where they discuss specific topics as an online resource to support fathers and strengthen families.

Tuesday at noon

Aaron Bishop was appointed Commissioner of the Administration for Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (AIDD) within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in March 2014, having served as Acting Commissioner since November 2013. AIDD provides financial and leadership support to organizations in every state and territory in the United States to ensure that individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities and their families can fully participate in and contribute to all aspects of community life.

Mr. Bishop has almost 20 years of experience working with and for individuals with disabilities in both the direct practice and public policy sectors. He was the Executive Director of the National Council on Disability from November 2010 until February 2013. In 2006, he received a Kennedy Foundation Public Policy Fellowship to work on federal disability policy and legislation for the U.S. Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions.

Mr. Bishop’s previous experience also includes serving as the Project Coordinator for the Waismann Center University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities, where he managed projects that advanced the rights of individuals with disabilities. He also served as the Site Coordinator and Director of Technical Assistance for the National Service Inclusion Project for the Association of University Centers on Disabilities.

Mr. Bishop received his Master’s of Science in Social Work, with an emphasis in public policy, and two Bachelor’s of Science in Natural Sciences from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.
"Parenting Children With Health Issues: Essential Tools, Tips, and Tactics for Raising Kids With Chronic Illness, Medical Conditions, and Special Healthcare Needs" – Does your child have a health condition which requires special medical or dietary care? Whether your child has ADD, allergies, asthma, cystic fibrosis, diabetes, Down Syndrome, developmental delays, an eating disorder, hemophilia or any other special need, you’ll find essential parenting skills to respond to your child’s emotional needs, help your child cope with health challenges, comply with medical requirements and live a hope-filled life.

"The Common Sense Guide to Your Child’s Special Needs: When to Worry, When to Wait, What to Do” – If you have a child who is struggling, who is not meeting her/his developmental milestones, Dr. Pellegrino clearly explains to parents what are the next steps to take. – Section 1 entitled “Understanding Your Child,” goes into details about common areas of concern – Section 2 entitled “Special Children, Special Needs,” focuses on hearing, vision, and sensory problems. Also, Dr. Pellegrino has a chapter on Special Medical Problems where he gives information on basic health care of children with special needs.

"A Different Kind of Perfect: Writings by Parents on Raising a Child with Special Needs” – Every parent dreams of having a happy, healthy child. What happens when these dreams are shattered by a physical or cognitive disability? The writings collected here are grouped into chapters reflecting the progressive stages of many parents’ emotional journeys, starting with grief, denial, and anger and moving towards acceptance, empowerment, laughter, and even joy.

"Autism in the Family: Caring and Coping Together” – How can parents provide the best support for their child with autism—and ensure that the whole family’s needs are met? This book has answers with keen insight, reassuring honesty, and practical guidance. A practicing psychologist and father of an adult son with autism, Dr. Robert Naseef [Will be giving a Keynote Presentation at the Nevada Disabilities Conference] has both personal and professional expertise to share with overwhelmed families, weaving wisdom from years of clinical practice with candid first-hand insights on parenting a child from birth through adulthood.

"The Early Intervention Guidebook for Families and Professionals: Partnering for Success” – This practical guide is essential reading for both professionals and families of infants and toddlers with, or at risk for, developmental delays or disabilities. The Early Intervention Guidebook shows what early intervention looks like when it is based on current research, policies, and best practices. It focuses on how families and professionals can collaborate effectively so that young children learn, grow, and thrive. Specific components of early intervention evaluation and assessment, program planning, intervention implementation, service coordination, and transition are discussed in every chapter.
